Colour Correction!

This morning when we came into paint we realized that the mandala on the far left was a little off. We stood and pondered this for some time. . . . Comments like "it's a little ketchup and mustard" came up. The bright red alongside the bright yellow just was not working! We began to play with colour and mixed a new shade of purple. Adding and changing this made a big difference. The mandala became balanced and we were able to move forward feeling content.
