The Miracle Workers Behind PACKERS' TRACKERS

Drs. Richard and Tamar Packer (left in green), Terry Booth (second row, right in green), Andrea Engerer (third row, middle in green) and the Packers' Trackers walk together towards a healthier, active lifestyle. Dr. David Higgins (far right, back row) joined the team for a recent trek.

Approximately 1.4 million Ontarians are living with diabetes and many of them seek treatment and care at St. Joseph's Healthcare Hamilton.

Drs. Richard & Tamar Packer, along with two allied healthcare professionals, are doing their part to help people in our region manage their disease through an optimal mix of medication, diet, and exercise.

As part of the Packers' family practice Dietician, Andrea Engerer and Nurse Educator Terry Booth who also works at St. Joe's Diabetes Program, host weekly nutrition seminars for patients, and created a walking group too! Established in 2012, the walking group goes by the catchy name of "Packers' Trackers". Trackers of all ages and abilities come together once a week with canes, walkers, and a commitment to manage their disease by supporting each other—they even raise funds for a different charity every month!

"We offer our patients suggestions and advice about being more active and find that Andrea and Terry walking with our patients is even more effective. It shows how committed they are to helping the people we serve long after they've left the Hospital," explains Dr. Richard Packer. "They're helping people to help themselves...and having fun while doing it."

The walking group and seminars are having a positive effect. While many patients require monthly hospital visits, they're now able to manage their disease at home thanks to the regular diet and exercise regimens they've learned from Andrea and Terry.

To honour the way that Andrea and Terry embody the mission of our Hospital, Drs. Richard and Tamar Packer nominated their colleagues as St. Joe's Miracle Workers through the Foundation's Grateful Patient Program. Andrea and Terry received their wing-shaped pins and acknowledgement letters at a recent staff meeting on July 29, 2014. ●

Our Respiriology Researchers Win $2.87million in Peer-Reviewed Funding

Dr. Parameswaran Nair, one of seven St. Joe's researchers to receive funding, focuses his research on asthma and pulmonary disease.

Congratulations to our respirology researchers who have been awarded $2.87 million in peer-reviewed research funding from the Canadian Institutes of Health Research (CIHR) and the Ontario Lung Association!

A total of seven researchers from the Firestone Institute for Respiratory Health at St. Joseph's Healthcare Hamilton will receive this grant funding in order to conduct research into causes and treatments for those with diagnosed with respiratory illnesses such as asthma and pulmonary fibrosis. Peer-reviewed research funding is awarded to researchers on a competitive basis, with CIHR awarding only 507 operating grants to a total of 2,862 applicants.

Dr. Paul O'Byrne, Executive Director of the Firestone Institute of Respiratory Health, recently published a study where his research team discovered and tested a potential antibody that successfully relieves inflammation for those with mild allergic asthma. His colleague Dr. Martin Kolb, Research Director of the Firestone Institute of Respiratory Health, also recently published results from a clinical trial that successfully tested a drug that slows down the disease progression of idiopathic pulmonary fibrosis in patients by approximately 50 percent per year.

The Firestone Institute of Respiratory Health is an internationally-recognized centre for respiratory research and clinical care.

Grant funding allows our respirology researchers to continue their exploration into ways to improve the quality of life for those diagnosed with respiratory illnesses.

Congratulations to the following researchers that have received grant funding:

- ▶ Dr. Kjetil Ask
- ▶ Dr. Luke Janssen
- ▶ Dr. Martin Kolb
- ▶ Dr. Renée Labiris

A new program at St. Joe's West 5th Campus focuses on bringing patients out of the blues and putting them in a better mood. In March 2014, Dr. Zena Samaan, Psychiatrist and her team in the Mood Disorders Outpatient Clinic began a Behavioural Activation Therapy program called Out of the Blues to help patients understand that what you do affects how you feel.

Patients meet twice a week for ten weeks to learn about goal setting, mood monitoring, problem solving, activity scheduling and how to use technology to manage their health. Activities and group outings are based on patients' values and goals. Following the ten-week program, patients meet with clinical staff on an individual basis for eight weeks to assess their mood, quality of life and overall experience with the program. "So far, participants are really enjoying themselves and we've had a lot of positive feedback," said Dr. Samaan. Follow-up sessions occur every three, six and twelve months.

The Out of the Blues program welcomes English-speaking individuals over 18 years of age with depression. The program is open to current patients and community members who may refer themselves or request a referral from a clinician. Phase two of the program will launch in October 2014. ●
